Conclusion

- Undoubtedly there are plenty of intelligent and truly amazing thinkers to pick from for your open National Security Threat Researcher position. I might not be the smartest, but I have over two decades of highly varied experience to pull from. I am smart and creative and work best by pitching my ideas against and along side other smart and creative counterparts. Let's chat more and see if this might be a good fit. I won't provide work for free, and wouldn't expect any serious team focusing on preparedness to rely on free work.
